Athens as the stage for oral implantology

The 19th Europe Symposium will take place on April 18, 2026 in Greece

The BDIZ EDI invites you to the 19th European Symposium in Athens on April 18, 2026. The traditional continuing education event will take place at the Golden Age Hotel of Athens and will focus on current issues in implant surgery and implant prosthetics. The focus will be on professional European exchange.

The symposium brings together renowned speakers from Greece, Germany, and other European countries. They will highlight the latest scientific findings, state-of-the-art clinical standards, and promising digital developments that are shaping oral implantology across Europe. Moderated by BDIZ EDI President Christian Berger, renowned speakers from the fields of periodontology and implantology will be appearing. The program covers a wide range of relevant topics, including modern surgical concepts, risk management and evidence-based protocols, prosthetic strategies, material developments and long-term stability, digital workflows from planning to navigation, CAD/CAM-based solutions and AI-supported applications, and, of course, the interface between periodontology, surgery and prosthetics.

Christian Berger, Munich	Report from 21st European Consensus Conference (EuCC) in 2026: The digital workflow in oral implantology
Professor Phoebus Madianos, Athens:	Minimally invasive reconstructive strategies in aesthetic implant rehabilitation
Professor Robert Celic, Zagreb:	Conventional and digital impression techniques for full-arch implant prostheses – state-of-the-art
Dr Erion Cerekja, Tirana:	Predictability in implant surgery: key principles and clinical strategies
Dr Alexandros Manolakis, Thessaloniki:	How precise are contemporary digital workflows in implantology?
Dr Dimitris Xygkas, Athens:	Alveolar ridge augmentation utilizing collagenated biomaterials
Professor Stratis Papazoglou, Athens:	The last one – anterior single implant treatment surgical-prosthetic sequencing

A long-standing cooperation partner of BDIZ EDI is the renowned specialist publisher and organizer of high-quality training courses and curricula (also for BDIZ EDI) OMNIPRESS by and with Yannis Roussis from Athens. “The starting point for the greatest undertakings is often found in barely perceptible opportunities,” as Demosthenes (384 to 322 BC) already knew. “This quote is characteristic of the BDIZ EDI's European symposia. From small beginnings and opportunities, an approach has emerged that allows European dentists to grow together across national borders, thereby intensifying professional exchange within Europe,” says BDIZ EDI President Christian Berger.

The conference language is English in order to promote international exchange and facilitate participation for the European professional audience. There are 8 continuing education credits in accordance with the continuing education guidelines of the Bologna Process and DGZMK, BZÄK, and KZBV.
